

Residents want paving, but oh! the cost?

Residents of McConnell Avenue in Terrace near the Northwest Community College say they want their street paved but the proposed $205,000 cost is too much to be divided between the 45 residents.

Tom Kenna, a resident, acted as spokesman for the other residents at Monday's council meeting and said that one taxpayer could pay $1,200 a year on top of taxes over 20 years and another taxpayer would have to pay a total of about $3,000 under the proposal.

North Thomas Street and McConnell Avenue should be designated arterial thoroughfares, the residents say in a petition, and they maintain this would seem more logical in view of the fact that Lanear Hill to McConnell intersection has been so designated.

"It should be noted that in view of the location of schools we feel it is incumbent upon municipal council to look after the welfare of our more vulnerable pedestrian traffic," they say.

They urged council to work on sidewalks along North Thomas Street for Uplands School student traffic and along McConnell Avenue for NCC students traffic.

"We recognize that there would possibly be some pro rata charge against the property owners if the afor-mentioned roads are rated as arterial thoroughfares, but we feel this is acceptable, for a new road, even though it increases the burden to local taxpayers," say the residents.

Kenna noted that people insist on using McConnell Street to go to and from the college, even though Kalum Lake Drive is paved.

According to one resident McConnell Avenue is also used as a residential, creating a dust problem.

Another resident said that drainage has been a problem and council seems to have ignored earlier petitions from residents urging it to do something to stop the flooding in that area.

"My home was damaged one year and there is no point in fixing it up until we know that the drainage problem is taken care of," the resident said.

Mayor Dave Maroney said that work is not budgeted this year for the McConnell Avenue area. The letter on the cost of foot frontage to each resident was sent out to get their reaction to the proposal, he said.

The petition was referred to the Public Works Committee for further study along with the earlier petition on the drainage problem.

Hockey battle part of feud

Judge Darrell Collins gave a Terrace youth "a break" Tuesday in Terrace Provincial court finding Carman Brown guilty of causing a disturbance in a public place after an incident at the Terrace Arena on January 6, 1979.

"I am disturbed, as I feel the prosecutor is, that someone else wasn't charged also," said Collins before giving Brown a conditional discharge.

During the trial, where Brown acted as his own counsel, the court was told of a long-standing "feud" between Brown, a Terrace resident, and Andrew Jackson, a player on the Prince Rupert juvenile rep team.

"We do not get along," Jackson said in his testimony about his relationship with Brown. Jackson also related to the court his version of events that led up to a fight at the arena that, according to witnesses, involved up to 15 people in several related incidents.

Brown, when testifying in his own defence, said he and Jackson had been exchanging insults throughout the evening, during a hockey game between the Prince Rupert team and a Terrace team. Brown said that while he was in the stands and when Jackson was going on and off the ice, they had words.

When asked by Crown counsel Tom Bishop if he were a "peaceable person", Brown stated "I won't just go start a fight." "If the circumstances are right I just won't back off," he continued.

Several off-duty RCMP officers were also involved in trying to end the "melee" that followed the exchange of insults.

Constable Hadley, of the RCMP in Prince Rupert and coach of the Prince Rupert hockey team at the game, said he attempted to restrain Brown after he saw an altercation develop between Brown and Jackson, following another verbal exchange at the end of the game.

"I immediately jumped into the melee and I grabbed a person who was later identified as Carmen Brown," said Hadley.

"Persons above us were swinging crutches. There was much profanity coming from Mr. Brown," Hadley told the court.

Douglas Ritchie, a witness for the defence, told the court the fight had been started by Andrew attempting to poke Brown with his hockey stick.

Later the same evening, a Terrace juvenile was charged with pointing a firearm and possession of a firearm that results in a danger to the public after shots were fired outside the arena approximately 11:30 p.m.

Gas price hike okay

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pacific Northern Gas said today the British Columbia Energy Commission has approved a rate increase of slightly less than 8.3 per cent.

The company, a subsidiary of Westcoast Transmission, serves customers in west central B.C. including Terrace, Prince Rupert, Kitimat, Burns Lake and Fort St. James.

Bob O'Shaughnessy, vice-president of Pacific Northern, said the company had been granted an interim rate increase of slightly more than 8.3 per cent but, because the difference between the interim rate and the new rate fixed by the commission was so slight, no refund was ordered.

He said the company sought a rate that would provide a return on investment of 11.1 per cent, but the commission set a rate that would provide a return of 10.99 per cent.

AIRWEST CRASH

Mechanical failure cause

VANCOUVER (CP) — An investigation was told Tuesday that mechanical failure was to blame for the crash of an AirWest plane in Sept. 1978, in the city harbor which killed 11 people.

Harold Fawcett, head of Canada's air safety investigation team, said the most likely cause of the accident was failure of the wing flap linkage.

The Twin Otter crashed into Coal Harbor on a flight to Vancouver from Victoria. Nine of the dead were tourists from Japan.

Fawcett said the result of the failure was that the flap on one wing was forced up, while the flap on the other wing was forced down. The two flaps are supposed to act in concert.

He said an earlier theory of possible failure of the engine's reverse propeller mechanism was discarded early this year.

Fawcett also said it was not until March 19 — seven months after the crash — that a government airworthiness directive was sent out warning aircraft engineers to look for metal fatigue cracks in the wing flap linkage.

He said the delay was because not all the linkage components were recovered with the wreckage from Coal Harbor. The crash site had to be dredged to recover the missing parts.

The inquiry continues.

THEFTS RESULT IN JAIL TERM

In Terrace Provincial court Tuesday, Judge Darrell Collins sentenced a former Terrace resident, Edgar Dale Archibald, age 20, to a total of fifteen months in prison at the Prince George Correctional Centre, as a result of being found guilty on three counts of theft over $200.

Archibald was found guilty of stealing four motorcycles on May 2 and May 10. Archibald was also sentenced after being found guilty of theft arising from an incident April 30 when he was charged with stealing a logging loader and attempting to push his car to his residence with it, after being unable to start the vehicle. The loader was damaged as the result of hitting a bridge.

"You seem to have very little, if any, concerns for the property of others," Collins told Archibald before passing sentence.

Star is dead

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Silent screen star Mary Pickford, North America's sweetheart in the 20s, died Tuesday at Santa Monica Hospital of a stroke, her secretary said.

The secretary said the Toronto-born Mary Pickford, 86, had been in apparently good condition until Friday, when her husband Buddy Rogers entered her bedroom and found her in a fumbling condition. He summoned a doctor and Miss Pickford was taken to hospital, where her condition deteriorated.

Death came about 2 p.m. PDT, her secretary said. "She was a strong-minded woman and she fought for her life," said the secretary. "But her age was against her."

Miss Pickford, born Gladys Mary Smith in Toronto on April 8, 1893, was one of North America's first film superstars, beginning her career in 1909 with Her First Kiss.

"Those days were fun," she said of her film career in an interview in 1976, "and hard work."

"I miss them very much. I've had a beautiful career. Miss Pickford told friends she preferred to be remembered as she looked 50 or 60 years ago.

CRASH RESULT

Airplanes grounded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government ordered immediate grounding of all 134 U.S.-registered DC-10 jetliners Tuesday after the discovery of "grave and potentially dangerous deficiencies" in the assembly holding the planes' engines to the wings.

The order takes out of service all planes similar to the wide-bodied American Airlines jetliner which crashed near Chicago on Friday, killing at least 273 people in the worst air disaster in U.S. history.

"I have no choice but to ground all U.S. DC-10s immediately," Langhorne Bond, head of the Federal Aviation Administration, announced at a news conference.

The grounding order also applies to A-300 Airbus, a European-made, wide-bodied jetliner. Only a small number are operated by U.S. airlines. The engine and wing pylons are of the same design as those on the DC-10, the FAA said.

In Ottawa, transport department officials said two Canadian-owned DC-10s operated by Wardair also have been grounded.

Bond told the Washington news conference that the trouble with the DC-10s involves more than the engine-mounting bolt that broke as the doomed American Airlines flight was taking off Friday. After the bolt snapped, the plane lost an engine and crashed in flames.

Bond said inspections carried out since Friday's crash have revealed defects in the assemblies that hold the engines to the wings of an unspecified number of DC-10s owned by United and Northwest airlines.

Shortly before Bond announced the grounding of the planes, McDonnell Douglas Corp., manufacturer of the DC-10, said an inspection in Chicago had revealed a crack on an engine mounting on a United Airlines DC-10.

Bond said all DC-10s would undergo a "comprehensive inspection" for possible problems in the engine-to-wing mountings. He said FAA officials would distribute new inspection procedures to the airlines.

Officials said each plane will be permitted to return to service after its inspection by airline mechanics, who are licensed by the FAA.

Even after the aircraft are returned to service, Bond said, the engine mountings will be inspected every 10 days or every 100 flying hours — whichever comes first — until the FAA develops a permanent inspection plan.

Dan Henkin, a spokesman for the Air Transport Association, which represents the airline industry, said the grounding of the DC-10s and A-300 Airbus represents the loss of 12 per cent of the available passenger capacity of U.S. airlines.

LAW SUIT FILED

CHICAGO (AP) — The first lawsuit arising from the worst air disaster in U.S. history was filed Tuesday, as human remains were still being recovered from the wreckage of the American Airlines DC-10 jetliner.

In Washington, the entire U.S.-registered DC-10 fleet was ordered grounded immediately because of "potentially dangerous deficiencies" in the assembly holding the engine to the wing.

A $15.75-million damage suit was filed on behalf of the wife and son of Hans Jurgen Kahl, 35, of Austria, who was aboard flight 191 Friday when it took off from O'Hare International Airport, rolled to its left, then exploded in a ball of flame as it cartwheeled into a field.

None of the listed 271 passengers and crew members survived the crash. Two persons on the ground also died.

Lawyer Phil Corboy of Chicago filed the suit in U.S. district court asking $5.25 million each from American Airlines, McDonnell Douglas — the manufacturer of the DC-10 — and General Electric, manufacturer of the engine that broke loose from the aircraft.

The suit charges that the plane was structurally defective, that the engine was not properly mounted and that the airline did not provide "the highest degree of safety."

The Los Angeles-bound flight lost its left engine on takeoff and a broken bolt from the engine assembly found along the runway prompted the FAA on Sunday to order an inspection of engine bolts on all DC-10s.

But FAA administrator Langhorne Bond indicated the DC-10's problems go further than just the bolt that failed.

Sources said earlier Tuesday that the planes would be grounded because of the discovery of "metal fatigue."

Airline officials said it would be impossible to determine the final death count until all bodies were found and identified.

Dr. Robert Stein, the Cook County medical examiner, raised the possibility that the death count might be one or two higher than previously announced. He said he has seen the bodies of an infant and a "very young child." One or both could have been flying without tickets, and thus not named on the passenger list.

American Airlines spokesman Joe Scott said there have been no inquiries about missing children.

Scramble to find enough airplanes

NEW YORK (CP) — Officials at eight U.S. airlines were scrambling Tuesday to locate planes to fly as substitutes on hundreds of routes after a federal agency ordered all domestic DC-10 aircraft temporarily grounded.

Airline spokesmen said they might be forced to cancel some flights. They urged travellers holding reservations on DC-10s to call airlines to learn whether flights would depart as scheduled.

The eight U.S. airlines that fly DC-10s are: American, Continental, National, Northwest Orient, United, Western, World and Trans International.

About 10 per cent of all U.S. flights from major airports are aboard the wide-bodied DC-10, which can hold up to 380 passengers.

The decision forced Britain's tiny Laker Airways, which uses six DC-10s, to call back two of its flights as they neared the U.S. coast.

Laker said it was cancelling all of its U.S.-Britain flights for at least one night.

It operates a popular nightly flight from New York to London using DC-10s.

Although the grounding order affected only U.S. airlines, foreign carriers using the plane said they would comply as well. A total of 280 DC-10s are in service — 146 by foreign airlines and 134 by U.S. carriers.

Langhorne Bond, administrator of the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), ordered all domestic DC-10s grounded after inspectors found "grave and potentially dangerous deficiencies" in the assembly that holds the engine to the wing.

Bond said the order would remain in effect until all of the engine assemblies could be inspected. He said he could not estimate how long the inspections would take, but that it could keep the fleet grounded two or three days.

United Airlines spokesman Dave Ostwald said its inspectors Tuesday "found a crack in a pylon spar web, a horizontal reinforcing place" on the wing of one of its 37 DC-10 jets.

Personal attacks forced him out

REGINA (CP) — Dick Collier, the controversial leader of the Saskatchewan Progressive Conservative party, announced Tuesday he was stepping down as party leader after putting up with 6½ years of personal attacks.

Collier, 43, leaves no obvious heir apparent for the Conservatives. A new leader will be chosen at the party's convention in November and Collier will continue as leader of the Opposition until then.

He said he felt "terrific" about his decision to leave the leadership of a party that was virtually non-existent at the provincial level until he took charge. In his first provincial election in 1975, the Conservatives took seven seats and became the third party behind the Liberals and the governing NDP.

In last October's provincial election, the Conservatives won 17 seats and became the official opposition. The Liberals were defeated in every riding and the NDP, under Premier Allan Blakeney, won 44 seats.

Asked if he would continue as the MLA for Nipawin riding, he replied "certainly," but then paused and added: "Decisions will be taken in due course, I am not making any announcements on that score at this time."

Collier became embroiled in a sometimes sensational lawsuit with his former Saskatoon business partners over the division of assets from the partnership. Collier had acted as a management consultant.

No sooner was that suit settled out of court than the Saskatchewan Government Insurance Office named him as a defendant in a lawsuit over performance bonds the provincial Crown corporation said it had to cover for a construction company. That suit is still before the courts. Collier said he sold his interest in the construction firm in 1975.

The insurance suit, he insisted, was a political move by the NDP.

Despite the financial hardships and the personal sufferings of his family, Collier, father of two daughters aged 19 and 17 and a son 15, said he would do it all again. At a news conference he also urged other business people to become involved in politics and defend the free market system.

"I have had to subject myself, and my family, without rancour or bitterness, to watching people who I considered to be loyal friends, attempt to use the courts and the press for what can only be described as vindictive personal motivation for political purposes," he said.

"I have had to witness even my government attempt to do the same thing in an effort to sully my reputation."

"I have had to witness my family's subjected to the most vilifying midnight phone calls, teachers calling my children reactionaries and treating them with disdain, disrespect and disgust just because they were my children."

Collier complained of an "unforgiving, sometimes uninformed and sometimes unfair press" and a "ciscious and unwarranted" personal attack by his political foes.

Although he said the experience in Saskatchewan politics was "marvellous," he said he was ill-trained for it as a businessman.

Following the news conference, Collier went into a 90-minute caucus meeting to discuss continuity during the coming months.

Gary Lane, MLA for Qu'Appelle, is considered almost certain to be a candidate to replace Collier.

Lane told reporters: "I have made my decision to myself and I will have an announcement in due course."

Another possible candidate is Collin Thatcher, MLA for Thunder Creek and son of the late premier Ross Thatcher. Thatcher said he was depressed about Collier's decision and the decision of the electorate not to make the Conservative leader premier. But to comment on his own political future would be inappropriate, Thatcher said.

Both Thatcher and Lane moved to the Conservative party from the Liberals after the 1975 election. Thatcher recently has indicated he would like to phase out of politics. A new leader elected from outside the current caucus might gain a seat through a byelection in Thunder Creek.

Provincial Liberal Leader Ted Malone was quick to quash speculation he might be interested in replacing Collier. But Malone added there was a good chance he would contest any byelection needed to give a new leader a seat in the legislature.

Blakeney was in a cabinet meeting and unavailable for comment.

Collier refused to speculate on who might replace him and said he would not support any candidate.

House to sit again June 6

VICTORIA (CP) — The British Columbia legislature will reconvene June 6, Premier Bill Bennett announced Tuesday.

Bennett prorogued the legislature April 3 to call a provincial general election May 10. His Social Credit government was reelected, but with a reduced majority.

Social Credit held 34 seats, the New Democrats 18 and the Progressive Conservatives one, with two vacant, when the election was called. Bennett returns with 31 seats and the NDP 26 as two more seats were added through electoral redistribution.

Government whip George Mussallem said cabinet ministers won't be doing much travelling while the house is in session because the government holds such a slim majority.

The majority will be reduced to four when a speaker is appointed.

Mussallem said an order will be sent prohibiting travel or non-attendance when the house is in session. He said ministers will have to stay close to Victoria to ensure the government isn't embarrassed by a defeat in a sudden vote.

NEWS IN BRIEF

TORONTO (CP) — A vacationing Toronto family has been bumped from an overbooked-airline flight for the third time in 10 days, but the family is happy and $1,300 richer.

Richard Gordon, his wife, Marlene, and their two children, Melanie, 9, and Tara, 6, volunteered to give up their seats on two overbooked American Airlines flights out of Toronto on May 18 as they started their Bermuda vacation.

To compensate them for the delays, American paid them $700 in U.S. funds or about $610 Canadian.

Heading back to Toronto during the weekend, the Gordons were on an overbooked flight from New York and, once again offered to give up their seats.

This time, American paid them $150 U.S. each — a total of $600.

"The way I see it is that we had a marvellous holiday, and we made a profit of about $900."

The battle continues

JERUSALEM (AP) — A convoy of Israeli warships sailed in peace up the Suez canal Tuesday, but in the battered Lebanese city of Tyre, 350 kilometres to the north, convoys of refugees were fleeing rockets.

The Israeli military command said Egyptian President Anwar Sadat waved and saluted the first Israeli military vessels to enter the canal as they steamed past his villa in Ismailia.

COURT NEWS

Paul Douglas Vaughn, was found not guilty on a charge of being "unlawfully at large" by Judge Darrell Collins in provincial court Tuesday.

Vaughn, who is serving an intermittent sentence at the Terrace Correctional Centre, was four hours late checking in the Correctional Centre on the evening of February 23. Vaughn told the court the power at his residence had gone off sometime during the day, while he was sleeping, and stated the electric alarm clock he owned did not go off. Vaughn also stated he had slept most of the day as the result of an illness.

Vaughn also testified that he phoned the correction centre immediately after discovering he had overslept, and told the court he then took a taxi to the Correction Centre.

"I accept the evidence of the accused in this case in its entirety," Collins said before finding in Vaughn's favor.

Collins stated the only defense in a case where a charge of being unlawfully at large had been proven would be a case of lawful excuse.

Collins said Vaughn may not have had a lawful excuse, but stated the crown had failed to prove the intent required to commit a criminal action existed.

Several persons pleaded guilty to charges of impaired driving before Judge Darrell Collins in provincial court Tuesday.

After pleading guilty, Frank Baraneski told the court he was "trying to adjust the mirror and pull the seat back at the same time," in response to evidence given by Crown counsel Tom Bishop which stated the RCMP observed the vehicle Baraneski was driving cross the centre line before stopping the vehicle. Baraneski was ordered to pay a $200 fine or spend 14 days in jail in default.

Clifford Rudd also pleaded guilty to impaired driving. Collins noted Rudd had a previous conviction on a similar charge. Rudd was given a $500 fine or 60 days in default.

The Judge ordered Trevor Wittaker, to pay a fine of $200 or 14 days after he pleaded guilty to charges of impaired driving, following an incident May 11.

Sean Pyke pleaded guilty to impaired driving and was given $150 fine, or 10 days after RCMP stopped a vehicle he was driving on May 5.

In other matters before the court, Max Stewart, age 18, pleaded guilty to a charge of being a minor in possession of alcohol. Stewart was given a fine of $50.

Debbie Summerfield, also age 18, pleaded guilty to a charge of being a minor in possession of alcohol. Summerfield was ordered by Collins to sign a bond to "keep the peace and be of good behaviour." She was also ordered to perform 30 hours of community service work.

Another 18 year-old pleaded guilty to the charge of being a minor in possession of alcohol. Manuel Moniz was ordered to pay a $100 fine.

Lorna Therrien pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of marijuana after being charged when RCMP found a bag of it in her purse in April 28.

Collins ordered Therrien to pay a fine of $100, or 7 days in default.

On Friday, June 1 at the R.E.M. Lee Theatre, Terrace Little Theatre will present "Winners Circle", a collection of award-winning performances from Terrace. The evening begins at 8:30 p.m. with Pamela Shaw as Portia doing a monologue from "Julius Caesar" and a narrative poem called "Creation". Denise Kenney will perform the mime "Sunday Morning" and Rachel Reay will perform with her flute. All three were honored in the recent Pacific Northwest Music Festival and will be well worth watching.

Not to miss a good trick, the audience can see the invisible dog, which is considered the perfect pet, during the intermission in the lobby. This is part of the entertainment by Lionel Sears who has also made several donations of amusing and fascinating memorabilia to be auctioned off.

At 9:30 p.m., following the intermission, the questionable love story, "Isadora and G.B." will be performed. It concerns the imaginary meeting between Duncan and Shaw.

Isadora arranges this supposedly social evening with a very definite purpose. As the evening unfolds the play is by turns humorous, wistful and charming.

Tickets for this evening of fun and entertainment are $4 and are now available at McColl's Real Estate. Proceeds go towards the costs of going to the provincial festival.

Building is okayed despite protest

Terrace district council decided Monday to approve the undertaking of the construction of a new pre-fabricated steel public works building on its property between Yellowhead 16 and the animal shelter on Haugland Avenue.

The decision followed a lengthy discussion on the pros and cons of steel frame buildings when Alderman Alan Soutar, an architect, said he opposed the use of such a structure.

Soutar said such structures are sub-standard buildings, they look ugly, they do not make pleasant surroundings for office employees to work in and if council builds such a building then other businesses will build the same type of building.

The other types of buildings employ more local people and council should consider helping out the local contractors, who pay taxes.

Alderman Helmut Giesbrecht, acting chairman of the public works committee, said in presenting the recommendation to approve the construction that there is a savings of more than $184,000 to taxpayers by building with steel frame.

He said such buildings do not look like shacks and since it is mainly a maintenance shop, council does not have to build a showroom.

Representatives from the department of public works were consulted and they suggested the steel frame building, he said.

Mayor Dave Maroney said that he saw nothing wrong with steel frame buildings.

The project will not be started until next year.

Union to pay the debt

Members of the Canadian Association of Smelter and Allied Workers have voted to pay Alcan $81,500 owed by the union.

The debt was incurred when the company sued CASAW for $1.3 M following a strike in 1975. The union settled out of court for $135,000 and has been paying Alcan $3,500 per month.

CASAW Business Agent Wilho Papenbrock said Monday that members wanted to pay the balance in a lump sum and "start over with a clean slate."

"This puts the events of 1975 behind us," Papenbrock said.

He said the union did not want to owe the company any money during negotiations in 1980.

CASAW members also approved the choice of two experts in occupational medicine for the new health study at the Alcan smelter.

Drs. Stefan Cryzbowski and Moire Yeung of the University of British Columbia will conduct a pilot study involving 200 workers this fall.

The study will serve as a basis for a major study next spring of 2,500 employees including staff.

The new study is a joint project involving casaw, Alcan and the B.C. Workers' Compensation Board. Costs will be paid by the WCB.

The Yellowhead Interprovincial Highway Association is hopeful that there will be continued upgrading of Highway 16.

Quoting various government representatives, the association says the signs are there will be more federal government participation in the project to give us a good highway through Alberta to the coast.

They note that now Prime Minister Joe Clark said, "I generally share the view that upgrading the Yellowhead Highway would be in the national interest."

The association also points out that Don Mazankowski said, "A Progressive Conservative government will designate the Yellowhead Highway as the nation's second trans-Canada Highway and will establish the necessary federal-provincial cost sharing agreements to cover the costs of upgrading and maintenance to the level of a first class modern highway."

As well as the federal commitments to the road, with Alberta Deputy Premier Hugh Horner quoted as confirming government intentions to make the Yellowhead route a four-lane thoroughfare across the province.

Alex Fraser, the British Columbia minister of highways, is also on record as saying the province "is most anxious to enter into a co-operative agreement to upgrade the transportation system... Highway 16 would be a priority item."

So now we have an indication that everyone is willing to get on with the job of giving us an adequate transportation route along the mid-point of the provinces. Let's get on with it.

We did have a moment of concern when we noted that Skeena had elected an opposition member of the legislative assembly. There was some panic speculation that the Social Credit government would dig up Highway 16 and take it back. That proved to be over reaction, however.

The indications from sources within the highways department of the province are that most of the major contracts are either let or so close to being let that there would be no way the government could punish us by grinding to a halt on the road.

Prince Rupert, as the next grain terminal for the West, and Terrace, as the administration centre for a growing industrial and resource development area, are going to need that upgraded road access if not only this area but the country is going to prosper.

As the Yellowhead Highway Association notes, however, the signs are good but only time will tell.

An exchange of views

By BRUCE HENDERSON

Editorial page editor

Today's Post, King of Prussia, Pa.

Dear Editor:

I just can't take it anymore. I am cancelling my subscription to your newspaper because:

YOU'RE BIASED. Your reporting is always slanted and prejudiced to your own point of view. You're always trying to make the liberal, leftist pinkos look good, while those who tell the truth are lucky to get a few lines back with the girde ads. Just give us the facts: we don't need reporters, editors and the publisher foisting their prejudices on us with the news. Most of your columnists and editorials are narrow-minded too. Why can't they tell it like it is?

YOUR SENSATIONAL. All you want to do is sell newspapers. You play up the grisly murders, the gory accidents, the tragic fires. The worse the event, the bigger the headlines and pictures. But just try to find some important news, like what's happening in the SALT sell-out, where the candidates stand on gun control, or what the left-wingers are doing to our schools and you can't find it. All the stuff you print about crime and terrorists just encourages them, too; they think it's a kick to get the publicity, and besides, you're giving ideas to other kooks.

BAD NEWS. There's just too much of it. Not only do you glory in the gruesome stuff, but you run it at the expense of good, interesting stories. Why must we always read about political scandals, plane crashes, cars being recalled, people with problems? There's a lot of good people doing good things in the world, but you'd never know it from reading your newspaper! Last week, I called your paper to get a photograph of my daughter's Brownie Fly-Up, but of course, no one could come. Too bad she wasn't hit by a car on the way: she would have made page one!

YOU'RE INACCURATE. You've always got your facts wrong, and when you get around to printing a correction, it's buried inside somewhere. Most politicians, movie stars and athletes hate the press because they're always being misquoted, and I can't say I blame them. All the time, they're having to issue statements saying that wasn't what they said at all, and pointing out what they really meant to say. I'm surprised they don't sue you right out of business.

YOU LET US DOWN. Your headlines are too big and provocative, and often misrepresent the story. You don't give us enough of what we need to know: I always go to the polls feeling that I hardly know anything about the candidates. You don't give us enough in-depth reporting either. And you're all the same. The press has too much freedom and too much power.

I've tried to be patient with you, but you leave me no choice. I am cancelling my subscription.

Irate Reader

Dear reader:

I just can't take it anymore. I am cancelling your subscription to our newspaper because:

YOU'RE BIASED. You read everything according to your own prejudices, and if what we report doesn't agree with your views, you say we're slanted. Let me tell you, there's more slanted reading going on in this country than slanted writing. You say you just want the facts, but the first thing you want to know when you read a story is what does it mean? We try to indicate what certain developments might mean, without getting opinionated about it (except on the editorial page). Either way, we can't win.

YOU JUST WANT SENSATIONALISM. Let us print a front page story about a juicy murder, with dramatic pictures, and we'll be sold out in an hour. But let us lead with a significant story about natural gas deregulation — that's going to affect you a lot more than a murder across town — and you'll yawn and turn to the sports page. Readers, by exercising their choice, have a lot to do with determining what kind of a press we have — and the New York Daily News is the biggest seller in the country, not the New York Times.

GOOD NEWS. You just don't read it. We print pictures of cute kids, stories about ladies' clubs and features about interesting people. If it's your kid, your club or your neighbor, the item goes in a scrapbook. Otherwise, you skip it and plunge into the police news. An you'll read every word of a sex scandal before you call us up to complain about how disgusting it was of us to print it. Most news, by definition, is bad — or at least abnormal. You aren't going to read a long story about 300 planes landing safely at Philadelphia airport today, and scan the passenger lists; but let one of those planes crash and you'll want every detail.

YOU'RE INACCURATE. So many readers misquote us when they say, "I read it in the newspapers" that we hardly recognize a story once it's been passed around. You'll sometimes send us letters disagreeing with what we said in editorials when it isn't what we said at all. And you believe that politician who loves to blame the press for "misquoting" him when he has been called on something he shouldn't have said and has to save face quickly.

YOU LET US DOWN. You skim headlines without reading the stories and think you're well informed. We print reams of material about candidates and you can't be bothered with it; but you know which ones are divorced, how many kids they have, and what their wives look like. You're all the same: you think the press is one big organization run by the New York Times, when every newspaper is independent and unique.

I have tried to be patient with you, but you leave me no choice. I am cancelling your subscription.

Energy from the ocean

By ESTELLE DORAIS

TORONTO (CP)

Hydrogen gas drawn from the oceans is the energy source of the next century, says the president of the International Gas Union.

But Eric Gorgis, who begins his three-year term June 1, refused in a recent interview given in French to put a more precise date on his prediction.

A renewable source of energy, hydrogen gas would be recovered from the oceans by coastal nuclear power stations and would then be shipped as gas or converted to electricity, Gorgis said.

The lean, six-foot-four French Swiss, is president of Gaznat, which covers the natural gas needs of Swiss-Romande, the French-speaking third of Switzerland. He is also vice-president of Swissgas, the state-owned parent company.

The International Gas Union, a non-political international federation of the gas associations of 30 countries, was founded 48 years ago for the exchange of technical information on coal gasification.

Within 15 years coal gasification again will be an important source of energy expected to provide reserves to last four centuries, he said.

The 58-year-old economist was in Toronto to attend the union's world gas conference held every three years in the home country of the current president. The current president is James Kerr, head of Toronto-based TransCanada PipeLines Ltd.

The five-day conference ends June 1.

Gas is cheaper and involves fewer problems than nuclear power and oil, he said, and the nature of the technology needed to put it into use means there will never be a gas equivalent of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Gas-producing countries attempting to form a cartel would find it difficult because "to buy or sell gas involves a 25-year contract generally and because investments must come from seller and buyer, both parties are stuck with the execution of the contract."

It will never be possible to ship even liquefied natural gas like oil. Although this type of gas can be shipped by tanker, the seller must build liquefying facilities and the buyer must build installations to convert the liquefied gas back into a gas, he said.

The most important natural gas developments in the world included those in the Netherlands, the North Sea and the Soviet Union — although Gorgis said it was difficult to find out what's going on in that country.

China is another unknown, but the union has been in contact with representatives from that country for the last six months and Gorgis said his organization would accept China as a member if it applies. China sent three observers to the conference.

In North America, major developments are in Northern Canada, Alaska and Mexico and while Mexico involves political uncertainty, "there is always some element of political uncertainty with producing countries."

9-0 VICTORY

Expos take it all

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Ellis Valentine hit a three-run homer to cap a five-run, fifth inning and Montreal Expos rode the six-hit pitching of Steve Rogers to a 9-0 victory over Philadelphia Phillies in National League baseball action Tuesday night.

Rogers started the fifth-inning outburst by leading off with a single against Dick Ruthven. He advanced to second on Andre Dawson's sacrifice, moved to third on Rodney Scott's single and both runners scored on Warren Cromartie's double.

Tony Perez then drew a walk but was forced at second on a fielder's choice by Gary Carter, setting the stage for Valentine's fifth homer of the season.

The Expos had provided Rogers with a 2-0 lead in the second inning when Chris Speier doubled in two runs. Perez and Valentine both hit run-scoring doubles in the seventh inning for Montreal's final runs.

Elsewhere in the National League, Denny Walling's run-scoring single with the bases loaded in the ninth inning led Houston Astros to a 2-1 victory over Cincinnati Reds.

John Stearns and Steve Henderson belted run-scoring doubles to highlight a four-run rally in the seventh inning and give New York Mets a 6-2 triumph over St. Louis Cardinals.

Dave Parker drove in three runs with a homer and a double as Pittsburgh Pirates whipped Chicago Cubs 8-0 behind the combined five-hit pitching of Don Robinson and Grant Jackson.

In the first game of a two-night doubleheader on the West Coast, Dave Winfield homered and Gene Tenace cracked a two-run triple to help Gaylord Perry record his 271st career victory as San Diego Padres defeated Atlanta Braves 6-3.

In other late NL action, San Francisco was at Los Angeles.

In the American League, Cecil Cooper hit a pair of basesempty homers and Robin Yount added a two-run double off Catfish Hunter, leading Milwaukee Brewers to a 7-3 victory over the New York Yankees.

Lance Parrish snapped an 8-8 tie with a run-scoring single in the eighth inning following a two-out intentional walk to Jason Thompson to give Detroit Tigers a 9-8 victory over Toronto Blue Jays.

Bill Nahorodny doubled home two runs and Richard Wortham stopped Cleveland on four hits for eight innings to lead Chicago White Sox to a 4-2 victory over the Indians.

Two AL games were rained out.

Couture dumped 14 to take an 8-4 winner

by Chris Porter

Bob Couture allowed just five hits and struck out 14 opposing batters to pitch Terrace Shell-All Seasons Sporting Goods to an 8-4 victory over Houlden's Logging in a Terrace Mens Fastball game Tuesday night at Riverside Park.

Terrace Shell-All Seasons jumped out to an early 1-0 lead when in the first inning, leadoff batter Dave Dennis singled, was sacrificed to second by Eric Chapman, and was driven home by a Ken Nicholson single.

Houlden's Logging briefly took the lead in the bottom of the third. R. Lockerby led things off with a single, then when he attempted to steal second, the throw was wild, enabling him to take third. Ken Liebel followed with an infield hit to place runners at first and third with one out. A wild throw from All Seasons catcher to third base allowed Lockerby to score, while Liebel took second. Liebel then scored on J. Cooley's single to give Houlden's a 2-1 lead after three innings of play.

Terrace Shell-All Seasons, however, came up with five big runs in the top of the fourth to go on top to stay. Walks were Houlden's downfall, as Houlden's pitcher M. SAM issued bases on balls to Frank Ridler, Keith Scott and Dave Dennis, who all eventually scored. Bob Couture and Eric Chapman came up with base hits in the inning, were eventually driven around, and by the time the smoke had cleared, Terrace Shell-All Seasons held a 6-2 advantage.

Houlden's added a run in their half of the fourth to close the gap to 6-3, but Terrace Shell-All Seasons got that one back in their half of the sixth to make it 7-3.

Houlden's notched one run in their half of the sixth, but it was a costly one. Houlden's third baseman led off the inning with a single, stole second, and took third on a wild throw. A passed ball enabled him to score, but unfortunately he suffered a dislocated right ankle when he slid into home plate. The extent of his injury was unavailable at press time.

Terrace Shell-All Seasons rounded out the scoring in the top of the seventh. Wayne Forrester, with one out, drew a base on balls, took second on a fielder's choice, then came home on Keith Scott's single. Houlden's was unable to mount any attack in their half of the seventh, as Terrace Shell-All Seasons chalked up the 8-4 victory.

The next scheduled action in the Terrace Mens Fastball League is tomorrow, 7:30 p.m. at Riverside Park, when Williams Logging will take on the Skeena Cedar Kings.

HALL OF FAMER DIES

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Little, 85, the Hall of Fame football coach who guided Columbia to an upset Rose Bowl victory over Stanford in 1934, died Monday in a Delray Beach, Fla., nursing home after a lengthy illness, the university said Tuesday.

OLYMPICS COSTLY

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — New York state's share of the cost of operating the 1980 Winter Olympics is expected eventually to total at least $10.3 million, budget officials said Tuesday. These expenditures are on top of an administrative budget for the Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee itself of $42 million to $48 million, and on top of extensive state spending already committed for construction projects and other pre-Olympics costs.

BARNES IN COURT

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Former basketball star Marvin Barnes pleaded not guilty Tuesday to a misdemeanor charge of assaulting his estranged wife and was released pending further court action. Barnes was being sought by police on a complaint that he assaulted his wife, Debra Barnes, after a Saturday night dance.

Tories see study as waste

OTTAWA (CP) — A

Progressive Conservative promise to study amateur sport would waste time, money and energy needed to develop athletes for next year's Olympic Games, says Geoff Gowen, technical director of the Coaching Association of Canada.

"Instead of being deluged with procrastination, let's get on with the job of developing athletes," Gowen said Tuesday in an interview.

He said there have been enough studies on development programs in the last few years.

"The Liberal green and white papers, with all their flaws, contain a fair amount of knowledge," Gowen said. "The Conservatives should glean the literature and save time."

Bruce Halliday, Conservative spokesman on sport, recently called for the study and for "a new era in amateur sport."

Halliday, who represents Ontario's Oxford riding, said a parliamentary committee of all four political parties should hold hearings throughout the country.

The committee "would call expert witnesses and would try to come up with an unanimous report... readily transformed into acceptable legislation," Halliday said.

He also wanted a study of what he considers over-emphasis on the elite athlete at the expense of mass participation.

"We would prefer to see the federal authorities active in both financial and promotional ways to enhance and encourage mass participation at the community and university levels," Halliday said.

But Gowen contends that mass participation is inspired by top performers. "A good endurance kid likes to have a Jerome Drayton to look up to,"

Gowen said. "We all have dreams of occupying different roles."

He said it is a pity that the elite system is under attack because Canadian athletes have made great progress since 1971.

"But, in order to climb higher we need a vast increase in effort through support services,"

Gowen said the last few rungs on the ladder are the toughest to climb. The higher an athlete climbs, the more sophisticated the support systems must be.

"But only if we believe it's important to go higher."

The Liberal government budgeted $23 million a year to amateur sport in 1979 and 1980.

But Gowen said that, aside from the amounts being too little to have any great effect, there is no room in the budgets for expansion.

"If it's stable, we are in fact regressing," he said.

Hockey veteran earned the Hall of Fame

TORONTO (CP) — Sigurdur Frank Fredrickson's death was marked Tuesday by a small family funeral. The Hockey Hall of Famer who died in his sleep early Monday would have been 84 on June 11.

Not a big man by hockey standards, Fredrickson developed into a strong skater and magnificent stickhandler on the ponds around his native Winnipeg.

Although he was later to play professional hockey for 12 seasons, his fondest memories were as captain and high-scoring centre of the 1920 Winnipeg Falcons that won the Allan Cup and Olympic title at Antwerp, the first time hockey was introduced to the Winter Olympics.

"By God, what a team," he was to recall often. "There'll never be another one like it." The Falcons were made up of nine Icelandic Canadians and one "foreigner"—Anglo-Canadian rover Huck Woodman, all from the Winnipeg area.

The team was put together only the year before and brought Canada the first of a string of Olympic and world amateur titles unmatched until the Soviet Union started to make its mark in the mid-1950s.

Fredrickson scored seven goals in a 12-1 final-game rout of Sweden. The toughest game was a 2-0 (both by Fredrickson) semi-final win over the United States.

Fredrickson always looked for ways to exploit another team's weakness and this ability earned him a shot at the pro ranks shortly after his return from the Olympics.

He signed with Lester Patrick's Victoria Aristocrats (later to be called the Cougars) and led them to a Stanley Cup upset of Montreal Canadiens in 1925.

The Cougars lost the Stanley Cup to Montreal Maroons the following year.

Golfer's battle underway

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — The 10-man United States amateur golf squad, six of them 23 years old or under, start the biennial Walker Cup battle against Britain today.

The Americans will be without top star John Cook, but are confident of winning their 24th of 27 matches.

Cook missed the international because he was playing in the National Collegiate Athletic Association championships in North Carolina last week.

The U.S. Golf Association was not pleased about that sort of scheduling. Noting that the Walker Cup has always been played in Britain at the end of May, an Association spokesman said: "The NCAA for the first time this year scheduled its championships for the previous week, without any contact with the USGA."

The U.S. team includes Scott Hoch, runner-up in last year's U.S. Amateur; Michael Gove, the 1978 Pacific Coast Amateur champion; and Hall Sutton, winner of the Dixie Amateur the last two years.

The team's relative inexperience — four of them are playing their first international golf — is lessened by the presence of old hands like Jay Sigel and Martin West.

Sigel, 34, is the oldest member of the team and the only survivor of the winning U.S. squad of two years ago. West, 30, played in the 1973 Walker Cup.

Dick Siderowf, the non-playing captain, is a veteran of four Walker Cups going back to 1969 and twice won the British Amateur.

The British team includes five members of the squad that lost to the U.S. 15-8 two years ago — Allan Brodie, John Davies, Ian Hutcheon, Michael Kelly and Peter McEvoy.

McEvoy is anchorman of the British team after winning the British Amateur title the last two years. His only Walker Cup outing, in 1977, ended in defeat in both foursomes and singles.

The Muirfield course, home of the Honorable Company of Edinburgh Golfers, is 6,926 yards of windswept links, with a par 35-38-71 on Scotland's east coast, 18 miles south of Edinburgh.

and the Patricks, Lester and Frank, sold their interests in the Pacific Coast League to the rival NHL.

Fredrickson was sold to Detroit but signed with Detroit for the 1926-27 season. That sparked one of early pro hockey's biggest rube wars. Boston general manager Art Ross threatened to have Fredrickson suspended for life.

The ill feeling between the two men grew through the years and ultimately hastened the player's departure from the NHL. That same year, however, Fredrickson soured on Detroit and was sold to last-place Boston.

Fredrickson regained his form and led the Bruins into the Stanley Cup final against Ottawa, a series won by the Senators. Fredrickson, 27th in the scoring race at the time he was traded by Detroit, climbed to third.

It was the last productive year for the Manitoba speedster who had led the PCHL in scoring twice, including the 1922-23 season when he scored 39 goals and 15 assists in a 30-game schedule.

He was shipped to Pittsburgh after the 1929-30 season, becoming the league's first player-coach-manager. And, while the Pirates got off to a slow start, Fredrickson was the leading scorer through seven games.

In the eighth game, he was checked by Bill Cook of New York Rangers and suffered a knee injury that virtually ended his career although he was later to play the last three games of the season for Detroit.

Old feuds, such as the one he had with Ross, dismissed any hopes he might have had about coaching in the NHL and he returned to Winnipeg. He coached Princeton University from 1933-35, later moving to Vancouver to become an insurance salesman, a job he had worked at in the summer while playing hockey.

Fredrickson was a veteran of both world wars. He joined the Canadian army in the First World War but transferred to the Royal Flying Corps and won his wings in Egypt.

He enlisted for the Second World War as a flying instructor, based at St. Catharines, Ont., and Boundary Bay, B.C.

After his discharge in 1918, he went to Iceland and proved that airplanes could be used to find schools of fish, a practice still in use there.

For this, Fredrickson received the Order of the Falcon, the highest civilian award possible by the government of Iceland. The Order was to be returned on his death.

In 1959, the Icelandic government honored him for his part in developing the country's air industry by flying him and his wife, Beatrice, to Iceland to take part in ceremonies marking the 40th anniversary of flight.

In the insurance business in Vancouver until his retirement 15 years ago, Fredrickson and his wife moved to Toronto about a year ago to be closer to two of their children, Dr. John Fredrickson and Mrs. Marilyn Peppiat. Another son, Gordon, lives in Regina.

They say it's a shame

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has top-class basketball players representing it on the court and a nickel-and-dime outfit looking after off-court needs, says Jack Donahue, national team coach.

"It's one thing to play for nothing but another to have to pay to represent Canada," Donahue said Tuesday prior to the national team's departure for a two-week training stint in Italy.

Donahue said the players were upset over cancellation by the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association of a $3 a day, often spent on food supplements.

"It's just one more money thing that could affect morale," Donahue said in an interview.

Many of the players have sacrificed regular and part-time jobs to play for Canada at this year's Pan-American Games in Puerto Rico.

They draw $215 a month from the federal government — an amount Donahue considers insufficient.

BARRY CHURCH FINDS

Recreation trends the same and so are the problems

by Chris Porter

Terrace Recreation Advisory Commission member Barry Church feels that now is a time for maintaining and upgrading Terrace's present recreation facilities, as opposed to a time for building new ones, and the other Recreation Advisory Commission members feel much the same way.

Church recently had the opportunity to attend a joint conference held by the B.C. Recreation Association and the Recreation Society of B.C., held May 10 through 13 at the University of B.C. Vancouver. He was one of over 500 delegates from small communities all over the province at the conference.

Church said he was pleased with the conference, as he found out that people involved in recreation in other parts of B.C. are thinking much along the same lines as our own recreation advisory commission.

The guest speaker at the conference was Joe Curtis from New Rochelle, New York, and apparently even as far away as that, the recreation situation is much the same.

As a result of talking to many of the other delegates at the conference, Church now says he found out that most of B.C.'s other small communities are thinking much along the same lines as Terrace.

"It's gratifying to have my own ideas reinforced by people from other communities," he commented. "It was really beneficial to me personally, and I appreciated the opportunity to attend the conference," he added.

Church was able to convey many of the ideas he picked up at the conference with recreation people here, as Monday he spoke to a recreation workshop consisting of advisory commission members and maintenance people. He feels the cost of him attending the conference was money well spent.

"It broadened my scope immensely," he commented, "and I was able to share my ideas with recreation people here in Terrace. I hope I did a good job of representing Terrace at the conference," he added.

The Terrace Recreation Advisory Commission has voted unanimously to recommend to council that Terrace become an associate member of both the B.C. Recreation Association and the Recreation Society of B.C. For a nominal membership fee, the commission will receive newsletters and other information which will help it keep abreast of the goings on in the rest of the province, as well as the opportunity to send delegates to future conferences.

One selling out

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Jack Kent Cooke, the man who built the Forum to house his basketball and hockey teams, announced Tuesday that he plans to sell the arena and the teams to a Los Angeles businessman.

Involved in the sale, expected to be for $87 million and the largest transaction in sports history, are Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association, the Kings of the National Hockey League, the Forum and a ranch that the Toronto-born Cooke owns in the California Sierra.

Dr. Jerry Buss, who previously owned Los Angeles Strings of World Team Tennis, is the prospective buyer.

Cooke will retain his 80-percent interest in Washington Redskins of the National Football League plus other holdings.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the NFL had urged Cooke to divest himself of other sports interests if he wanted to stay with the Redskins. NFL rules prohibit an owner from having interests in other sports franchises.

However, Cooke was given time to settle a divorce suit. Then last March, his former wife, Barbara, was awarded one-half of his holdings which were estimated at $100 million.

Buss, 46, is a chemical engineer who made a fortune in Los Angeles real estate holdings. He has a doctorate in physical chemistry from the University of Southern California.

In addition to owning the Strings of WTT, he also was part owner of franchises at San Diego, Anaheim and Indiana.

Cooke, 66, built the Forum for $16 million in 1967 following disagreements with the Los Angeles Coliseum Commission over his teams' use of the Sports Arena adjacent to the Coliseum.

The sale will require the approval of the NBA and the NHL.

The announcement came from Cooke's office at the Forum in Inglewood although he is reported in the East and has been residing in Las Vegas, Nev.

Cooke said the sale includes no other of his business interests.

He bought the Lakers from Minneapolis businessman Bob Short for a reported $5 million in 1967 and paid $2 million to the NHL for the Kings as an expansion franchise the same year.

In addition to housing the teams, the Forum has been successful in luring conventions and shows by various groups.

Earlier this year, Buss tried unsuccessfully to buy Indiana Pacers of the NBA.

Bowman taking offers

NEW YORK (AP) — Scotty Bowman, who coached Montreal Canadiens to four straight Stanley Cup championships, is considering offers from four other National Hockey League clubs, his agent said Tuesday.

Bowman must decide by June 4 whether to accept one of them or remain with Montreal, said Jerry Petrie, who attended a news conference at which Montreal star Guy Lafleur was presented with an award.

"We have the right to talk to anyone who might be able to better Scotty's position. He has coached 12 years and wants to change his lifestyle so that he can be with his family more," said Petrie.

"As a coach he has to sleep in the afternoon, and he lives game by game. At least as a general manager he could be with his wife until game time."

Bowman has an open-ended contract that allows him to better his position at the end of any season. After the news conference, Petrie was to fly to his client's Florida vacation retreat to analyse each of the offers. Petrie said Bowman would talk to each of the four teams that have offered him jobs.

A source close to the situation said that one of Bowman's offers came from Philadelphia Flyers. Petrie would not confirm that.

"There is no problem in regards to money," observed Petrie. "We have to check out things like philosophy and what would be expected. Scotty has been with Montreal 28 of his 30 years in hockey and I still believe he has the Canadian emblem tattooed on his anatomy."

"He wants to stay part of the big league scene and is not yet ready to coach at the collegiate level."

Lafleur, who received an award Tuesday, as the season's most productive and consistent performer in the NHL, said he rates Bowman as one of the top four coaches in the league.

"There are Bowman, Fred Shero, Al Arbour and Don Cherry and that's about it," said Lafleur. "Good coaches with Scotty's knowledge of the game are hard to find. But coaching is a tough life. Most of the good ones want to become general managers, so I don't blame Bowman."

They see benefits of joining

WINNIPEG (CP) — Tulsa Oilers of the Central Hockey League will serve as the farm team for Winnipeg Jets who enter the National Hockey League next season.

John Ferguson, vice-president and general manager of the Jets, and Bobby Gilbert, owner of the Oilers, made the announcement in a joint statement Tuesday.

In their seven-year history in the World Hockey Association, the Jets never had a farm system.

"As far as we're concerned this is an excellent arrangement for an expansion club," said Ferguson, referring to the Jets entry into the NHL.

"It provides us with the means to develop our young personnel and... I'm sure we will be receiving some well-coached hockey players."

Mike Smith, 33, has been named coach of the Oilers. Smith was an assistant coach with Colorado Rockies last season and previously was with Ferguson in New York where he acted as both scout and assistant coach with the Rangers.

Gilbert said he is looking forward to the association. "I know John Ferguson's history and it shows he is a most reliable individual," said Gilbert.

Last season the Oilers had players supplied from the Atlanta Flames organization while in the two previous seasons Tulsa was associated with both Atlanta and Vancouver Canucks of the NHL.

Canada wins at cricket

BIRMINGHAM, England (Reuter) — Canada defeated Bangladesh by 49 runs in the only game completed Tuesday in qualifying play at the World Cup cricket matches.

Canada was 190 for 8, innings closed; Bangladesh 141 all out.

It was the second win in as many starts for the Canadians, who picked up another four points and were tied with Denmark atop Group Two with eight points each.

Their next game is against Denmark (2-0) Thursday.

Heavy rains wiped out the other five matches — Argentina vs. Papua New Guinea, Bermuda vs. Singapore, Fiji vs. Malaysia, Wales vs. Sri Lanka and the Netherlands vs. United States. Those games were rescheduled for today.

SILVER POMS DAZZLE THEM

SUN CITY, Ariz. (AP) — Snickers and catcalls greeted 18 retirement-age pom pom girls when they first pranced on to the softball field in April.

But when the panel-skirted steppers began to swish their orange and yellow pom poms to disco music, heads turned and even the visiting softball players squatted to watch.

Silver-haired Foofie Harlan bounced along the sidelines with hand-springs and cartwheels while Gerri Parker and 76-year-old squad director Corrine Leslie stood on their heads.

Pom poms swirled and tennis shoes made Rockette-style lines in the air under stadium floodlights. Then the girls pranced off the field to cheers and a standing ovation.

"That was unbelievable," a young sports writer told a reporter for the Sun City NewsSun. "Did you see that old gal doing hand-springs and the splits?"

Handspringer Foofie's daughter watched the show and was asked if she too performed acrobatics. "No, I'm not old enough yet," she replied. "I feel like I'm my mother's mother."

The pom pom squad performs between games of softball doubleheaders in support of the local Sun City Saints. Squad members were recruited from Corrine Leslie's dance classes.

When they're not tossing poms in front of 1,000 fans at Sun City Stadium, the girls perform at high schools and make the rounds of nursing homes.

Benefit concert in Kitimat

Classical guitarist Joseph Bouchier of Kitimat and flautist Madeleine Butler will perform a theatre benefit concert today, 7:30 p.m. at the Presbyterian Church Hall in Kitimat.

Both are music students at the University of Victoria. The duo will be playing in various areas of B.C. this summer under the auspices of a provincial grant. Their program includes Baroque, classical and modern works by such composers as Handel, Giuliani and Ibert.

The concert is sponsored by the Kitimat Concert Association with all proceeds going to the Kitimat Theatre Fund. Tickets are available for $2.50 adult or $1.00 children and senior citizens from Ye Wise Owl Shoppe, Concert Association members or at the door.

Following their Kitimat performance, Bouchier and Butler will appear at the R.E.M. Lee Theatre in Terrace on Saturday. This performance is in conjunction with the Northwest Visual and Performing Arts Conference.

Sharing their Terrace program will be a jazz band composed of band teachers from Kitimat, Terrace, Prince Rupert and Smithers. The concert begins at 8:00 p.m. and admission is $2.00 at the door.

During their three day stay in the area, Bouchier and Butler will also perform a series of mini-concerts for students at Kitimat schools.

Alcan facing strike

Workers at Alcan's Arvida smelter have given their union, the Federation des Syndicats du Secteur Aluminium a 90 per cent mandate to strike.

W. Ho Papenbrock, business agent for the Canadian Association of Smelter and Allied Workers Local 1 in Kitimat, said

Monday that the monetary offer from the company was not acceptable and unless a settlement is reached within a couple of days the 7,500 workers at Arvida will strike.

CASAW and the FSSA are co-operating on negotiations. Both unions want a joint expiry date for contracts.

Kitimat helping

by Ann Dunsmuir

Kitimat City Council Monday made a $1,000 grant to the Child Development Centre for handicapped children.

A request for a similar amount from the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was tabled until the next council meeting.

The society wants the grant to help pay for a second spay-neuter program similar to the successful program held in 1978.

SPCA secretary Dorothy M. Rooke reported in a letter to council that 161 animals were neutered during the initial program resulting in fewer unwanted puppies and kittens.

Council also tabled a request from the German Canadian Club of Kitimat to use the new gymnasium at Riverlodge Recreation Centre for a Bavarian Oktoberfest next fall.

The motion to table over ruled a motion by alderman Fran Buschert that the request be granted.

Alderman Lee Ellis argued that the gymnasium is the only room available that can accommodate more than 400 people.

"The room should be for the use of the entire community not just sports groups, Ellis said.

However, Mayor George Thom and Aldermen Ron Burnett and Joe Banyay agreed that the cost of adequately protecting the gymnasium floor should be determined before the request is granted.

In other business, council decided to grant a special use permit to sell chain saws and accessories at 39 Stein Street.

Municipal Manager Ben De Kleine recommended that council deny the request as it would "set yet another residential area".

A motion to deny the request, however, was defeated.

Alderman Banyay summed up the situation neatly. "I can't see any rhyme or reason to council's approach to S.U.P. permits," Banyay said.

In new business, Alderman Buschert's motion to set a moratorium on all special use permits until council determines a policy for granting them passed unanimously.

The turn signal at the stoplight at Haisla and Lahakas also came under discussion. The signal has been out of commission for 13 weeks while a $28 part made its way from Edmonton to Kitimat.

The part was installed Monday and functioned for half an hour before blowing out the entire stoplight in the middle of the 5 p.m. rush hour.

Alderman Buschert who was caught in the tie-up at the intersection said prompt action by a Kitimat RCMP officer prevented a major traffic jam and possible accidents.

Alderman Burnett, as usual had the last word. "We should get rid of the light and keep him," he said.

You Ask

Question: Is it possible to buy an air conditioner with too much cooling capacity for a room or house?

Answer: "Bigger is not always better," say home economists from Whirlpool Corporation. Too large an air conditioner can give a room or an entire house a cold, clammy feeling. Air conditioners dehumidify as well as cool the air, so a unit with too much cooling capacity for an area will cool the air quickly without staying on long enough to dehumidify it.

Question: Do I need to clean the filter in my air conditioner?

Answer: Yes. A dirty filter impedes air flow and causes the unit to operate less efficiently. Whirlpool room air conditioners feature washable filters and the company recommends that they be washed frequently.

MONEY SAVING TIP: Planting a few shade trees to screen the home from direct sunlight can help keep it cooler and reduce the energy used by your air conditioner.

INTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

HANDLING POWER TOOLS SAFELY
Safely taking your power mower out of cold storage and preparing it for the work of a new season calls for a seasoned approach outlined by experts at the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute.

1. Take the mower to an authorized service dealer for inspection unless you had it serviced in the fall.

2. See that the spark plug is cleaned and, if necessary, replaced while the engine is off.

3. Make sure the carburetor and air filter are clean.

4. Change crankcase oil and fill the fuel tank with gasoline.

5. Any metal parts that are scratched or rusted should be cleaned of rust and repainted. First, apply a priming coat of red lead, then two coats of exterior paint.

6. Make sure you read the owner's manual for instructions you may have missed or forgotten. Learn where all controls are, and review all safety precautions. Following these suggestions can get you off to a safe start.

Royal City holds celebration

By Joan Bellinger

The merry month of May brings together two unusual ceremonies, both more than 100 years old, that take place in New Westminster—a city which honors its traditions well, being it was the first capital of British Columbia and it was named by Queen Victoria.

Here, by the banks of the Fraser River, the Hyack Anvil Battery salutes Queen Elizabeth II on Victoria Day, and the chosen May Queen receives her crown, following a 110-year-old tradition.

These customs of the Royal City, as New Westminster is also called, eventually led to the 10-day Hyack Festival, and many new features have been added to please both the traditionalists and those who like the latest.

The festival takes place from May 17 to May 27 and it now includes the longest canoe race in North America, two parades, a Miss New Westminster contest, a carnival, a band marathon, and many sports events.

There are also such excitements as a car rally, square dancing, fun jogs, softball, and many rides.

MAYPOLE DANCE

Thousands of school children celebrate May Day on May 23 when the May Queen, chosen from the elementary school students, receives her crown. At the same time boys and girls perform the traditional dance around the Maypole, as well as perform gymnastics and folk dances.

All this adds up to the celebration of the longest continuous May Day anywhere.

The "ancient and honorable" Hyack Anvil Battery detaches a bang of a salute to the queen at noon on Victoria Day (May 21) at Queen's Park.

This has been a tradition since 1870 and they use two anvils, one placed on top of the other, to make the salute.

REPLACES CANNON

The Hyack Volunteer Fire Brigade had originally given the 21-gun salute on their own cannon, but when it became worn out, the then mayor and former blacksmith Thomas Owens came to the rescue. He donated two of his anvils, and after much trial and error and burnt fingers, it was found that when gunpowder was placed between these anvils, and fired, it made a most satisfactory salute.

The Hyack (a Chinook word for hurry up) Battery, resplendent in their red and black uniforms, have the operation down to a fine art now. Perhaps because the word is passed down from father to son, for descendants of the original battery now take part in the ritual.

The various positions of the battery have interesting names, for there is a powder monkey, a blower up, a toucher off, a swabber off and right and left hand hoisters. Amid much noise and smoke the top anvil flies into the air as the powder is fired at the call of the timer.

The Fraser River flows by the docks of New Westminster and on May 19 you may glance east and find under the Pattullo Bridge a colorful canoe collection heading towards you.

There are more than 100 entries in this marathon, and the six men in each canoe usually arrive somewhere around eight hours after they have left the starting point at Hope.

That is a lot of hard paddling

The Hyack Battery fires the anvil.

over 130 kilometres. And as the contestants near the dock, they are accompanied by the bells and whistles of many small boats, a spray from the fireboat, and the cheers of the spectators.

The old and the new blend well at the Hyack Festival, with a place for everything and everyone, including those who prefer art exhibits, the theatre, or the cycle sports.

This is a Tourism British Columbia feature.

Scent Facts And Fancies

Some 17,000 smells have been classified. Among them is the most expensive ingredient for perfume: pure French middle-note jasmine, which sells for $197 an ounce.

Only a tiny amount of any substance—as little as one thirty-billionth part by weight in a given weight of air—is needed to stimulate your sense of smell.

The nerve endings or sensory receptors for smell cover a limited area in the upper part of the nasal cavity, but these receptors are so arranged that air is drawn over them when we breathe.

Many foods and substances around the house have unpleasant odors that many deodorizers only mask with perfumes, but Super QD, a concentrated, heavy deodorizer in a tiny bottle, destroys odor with one or two drops.

The so-called taste of fruits and wine is really a smell or aroma. You can test this by holding your nose when you take a bite of your favorite fruit. You'll find you don't taste anything until you breathe again.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren
1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Enclosed please find my check for $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope for your booklet "How to Have a Lovely Wedding."

This wedding has to be specially lovely, because it is for a special daughter and a special young man. Both were labeled retarded as children, but have overcome their handicap and grown into mature, capable people. (She is 31 and he is 29.) Both work and are able to manage their own affairs with a little assistance from both sets of parents.

Friends and relatives are so happy that this beautiful couple found each other. If they were growing up today I'm sure they would not be labeled retarded, but would be considered to have "learning disabilities." They will be married in a church because their religion means so much to both of them.

This is my first letter to Dear Abby, and the only advice I need is how to make this wedding one of the liveliest our family has ever had.

REJOICING IN N.Y.

DEAR REJOICING: Thank you for a beautiful letter bearing a message of hope for all "special" children and their families. May the happy couple enjoy all of God's blessings.

DEAR ABBY: Frannie asked if birth control pills were deductible, and you replied, "Only if they don't work." Cute answer, but for your information, according to Internal Revenue ruling 73-200, birth control pills are deductible whether they work or not if prescribed by a physician.

NEIL WITH THE IRS

DEAR NEIL: Thanks for the info. Who am I to argue with the IRS? They're the nice people who know you can't take it with you so they remove the temptation.

DEAR ABBY: I have two big, good-looking sons. One is 18 and the other is 16, but he's as big as his older brother. These boys have been fighting each other since they were old enough to swing their arms.

The 18-year-old just bought himself a secondhand car with his savings. He drove past his brother walking down the road and wouldn't even give him a lift. The younger brother keeps his clothes in better shape, so the older one helps himself to his brother's clothes without asking. These boys fight and cuss like a couple of mule skinner.

Why can't they act like brothers?

TENNESSEE MOM

DEAR MOM: They do. Cain and Abel.

DEAR ABBY: Today I received a note which read, "Please give Suzie another week to pay for the social studies books she lost as we are making her pay for it out of her baby-sitting money."

Abby, if more parents taught that kind of responsibility at home, our job would be a great deal easier!
